

During the Soviet era, religion and economy were conceived as distinct, even mutually opposed spheres with their own rationales (such as 'rational actors' on the one hand and 'irrational' 'otherworldly' motivations on the other). A focus on the impact of religious ideas and practices on economic processes - and vice versa - serves to question the common perception of Central Asia as a region determined by either dangerous religious movements or lucrative oil and gas reserves. The lecture series interrogates how 'religion' and 'economy' are shaped and negotiated through everyday strategies and practices. How are separations, links, cross-overs and mutual constitutions of 'religion' and 'economy' conceived and put into practice by Central Asian actors? The lecture series seeks to foreground Central Asian debates on the relationship between religious and economic domains in order to query these social, political and social science categories.

Venues:

Zentrum Moderner Orient
Kirchweg 33
14129 Berlin-Nikolassee
www.zmo.de

Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin
Institut für Asien- und Afrikawissenschaften
Invalidenstraße 118
D-10115 Berlin
<http://iaaw.hu-berlin.de/islam>

GEFÖRDERT VOM

Bundesministerium für Bildung
und Forschung

Beyond Oil and Radical Islam: From Classifications to Links of Economy and Religion in Central Asia

Tuesday, October 18th, 2011, 5 pm, ZMO

Political Islam and Economy in Central Asia: Islamic Movements, their Socio-Economic Background and Ideological Aspects

Lecture by Parviz Mullojanov

Tuesday, November 1st, 2011, 5 pm, HU

Economy and Life Cycle Rituals in Kara Buura Region, Kyrgyzstan

Lecture by Nathan Light

Wednesday, November 30th, 2011, 5 pm, ZMO

The Boom, the Bust and the Mediating State: Housing Bail-outs and the Discourse of Fairness in the Wake of the Financial Crisis in Kazakhstan

Lecture by Alima Bissenova

Tuesday, December 13th, 2011, 5 pm, HU

The Worst of Places, the Best of Places: Bazaar and Risk Economy in the Lives of Kyrgyz Muslims

Lecture by Emil Nasritdinov

Tuesday, January 10th, 2012, 5 pm, ZMO

'Tengiz Crude' and the Making of a Nation-state in Kazakhstan

Lecture by Saulesh Yessenova

Tuesday, January 31st, 2012, 5pm, ZMO

Commanding Right and Forbidding Wrong? Islamic Elites, Business and the State in Tajikistan

Lecture by Tim Epkenhans

Tuesday, March 27th, 2012, 5 pm, ZMO

Rethinking Islam and the Soviet Economy

Lecture by Eren Tasar

Tuesday, April 24th, 2012, 5 pm, HU

Muslim Selves, Experience, and the Problem of Categories in Uzbekistan

Lecture by Johan Rasanayagam

Tuesday, May 15th, 2012, 5pm, ZMO

Markets, Money and Credit in Colonial Central Asia

Lecture by Wolfgang Holzwarth

Tuesday, May 29th, 2012, 5 pm, ZMO

Strategic Citizenship? Work, Home and the Pragmatics of 'Second Passports' amongst Kyrgyz Migrant Workers in Moscow

Lecture by Madeleine Reeves

Tuesday, June 12th, 2012, 5 pm, HU

Economy and Islamic Proselytism in Central Asia: A Comparison of the Fethullah Gülen Movement and Jam'at al Tabligh

Lecture by Bayram Balci

This lecture series is a cooperation between the Zentrum Moderner Orient, the Querschnittsbereich Islam in den Gesellschaften Asiens und Afrikas, Institut für Asien- und Afrikawissenschaften, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin and the Competence Network Crossroads Asia (www.crossroads-asia.de)