Leibniz Hall

The Arab-German Young Academy of Sciences and Humanities (AGYA) was established in 2013 as the first bilateral young academy worldwide at the Berlin-Brandenburg Academy of Sciences and Humanities (Germany) and the Arabian Gulf University (Bahrain). AGYA aims to promote cooperation between outstanding Arab and German early career researchers of all disciplines (3–10 years after PhD) and to support innovative interdisciplinary projects in various fields of research, science policy, and education. Moreover, AGYA fosters the intercultural experiences of its members and promotes them as ambassadors of science and culture.
